MAY SERVE EVENING MEAL WITHOUT MAID

Enertaining Informally at Sunday Supper Delightful Way of Having Guests to Meet Members of Family-Some Suggestive Menus.

Copyright, 1919, by Mrs. M. A. Wilson.)

The modern hostess may entertain Sunday evening and serve a little informal supper without the aid of a maid. This delightful way of having a friend or two to sup with you when the family is at home will appeal to the busy housewife and will delight the family.

The guest may be some old cronie of Yatner's or perhaps some friend of Tom's or Ethel's or an old schoolmate of mother's, who may wish to meet the family when they are together, and right here let me suggest to the mothers that this Sunday night supper is a splendid means of knowing the friends of your boys and girls, for you must realize that it is the real ambition of each boy and girl to have their chosen friends dine with them. The guest may be some old cronie of Yather's or perhaps some friend of Tom's or Ethel's or an old schoolmate of mother's, who may wish to meet the family when they are together, and right here let me suggest to the mothers that this Sunday night supper is a splendid means of knowing the friends of your boys and girls, for you must realize that it is the real ambition of each boy and girl to have their chosen friends dine with them.

It will also give the housewife a splendid chance to know just who her children's companions are. And if you will introduce some of the little niceties that go a long way to lend elegance to the humblest table you will not only teach your children that unpurchasable commodity. Ince table manners, but the young people will naturally avoid making friends with undesirable companions or those whom they would feel ashamed of in their own homes and at their own tables.

The chaing dish and the casserole dish may be featured at these little informal meals with great success, and this can be made a time to teach daughter how successfully to make attractive Sunday night suppers.

New Show at Lyric.

Comedy and novelty acts predominate in the new show which comes to the Lyric for the week-end, commencing with the matinee performance today. With the matinee performance today. Old Richmond favorites on the new bill are Denny O'Nell who began his performent of the partner John Avey, former professional associate of John Swor, the ministrel celebrity. Avey and O'Nell have a jolly blackface singing, dancing and comedy act. A real novelty on the same bill is promised in the picturesquely staged exhibition of animal intelligence, exploiting Henry's Pets. The act is one that will appeal to both kiddles and grown-ups. Hilarious fun is promised in the podrida of nonsensicalities, with musical accompaniment, supplied by Dale and Burch. They are a versatile team and Burch. One of the best dramatic sketches seen here in a long time is "Behind the Front." in which Harry Oakes, character comedian, and his company will be seen. The pieces is unique in conception and presentation, and is handsomely mounted scenically. Then there is the world's champion woman juggler, Selma Bratz. Miss Bratz is said to be a real "phenom." She is the creator of most of the remarkable feats of juggling she essays. With the new vaudeville hill will come interesting motion picture displays, including scenes from the demonstration given in honor of leamon de Valera, the Irish leader, in Priladelphia, and scenes from the world's championship series of baseball games.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath."

One of the conspicuous dramatic successes of last season will be seen at the Academy Monday and Tuesday, when "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" will be presented direct from its run at the Republic Theater, New York City. "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath" is said to have scored more laughs than any other comedy on the boards last year. It is certainly one of the very few plays that survived the sweltering New York heat, and ran well into the summer. The play is the work of C. W. Bell and Mark Swain and is described as a farce frolic in three acts.

*Under Orders."

Much mystery is connected with "Under Orders," the New York success which A. H. Woods will present at the Academy tomorrow and Saturday and Saturday matinee. It is described as an extraordinary dramatic novelty in four acts. It was written by Bert Thomas, a well-known English author and revised and elaborated by Roi Cooper Megrue. Although the piece was enthusiastically praised by the New York newspapers and magazines, and attained a tremendous success both in the metropolis and the larger cities of the East, very little has been divulged regarding the nature of the play which is said to centain a feature whose sensational novelty is without precedent in the theater.

Though they are not so extreme as they sound, you may be sure that Paris is responsible for these fascinating new belts.

Of patent leather, in black, or of a dull, rich red, the belts are rather narrow in width, and are finished with small metal buckles. But from the other, they are cleverly painted in colors. Sometimes the designs are conventional, sometimes floral—and sometimes, one must confess, they are rather hard to describe—not that that makes them any less attractive, however! The painting is in white or in a lovely blue, or in tan or red, and so proud of his work was the artist with without precedent in the treatment of the play which is said to centain a feature whose sensational novelty is without precedent in the treatment of the play which is said to contain a feature whose sensational novelty is without precedent in the treatment of the play which is said to contain a feature whose sensational novelty is without precedent in the treatment of the play which is said to contain a feature whose sensational novelty is without precedent in the treatment of the play which is said to contain a feature whose sensational novelty is without precedent in the treatment of the play which is said to contain a feature whose sensational novel to the play which is said to contain a feature whose sensational novel to the play which is

CARE OF TEETH

After reading some articles written by men and women of profound learning the reader comes to the conclusion that one wrong condition accounts for all the sorrow and unhappiness and suffering in the world. Sometimes it is adenoids that come in for attention. Sometimes it is broken arches. Sometimes it is eyestrain. And sometimes it is uncared-for teetly.

Of course, a min or woman can go times it is eyestrain. And sometimes it is uncared-for teett.

Of course, a man or woman can go through life with poor teeth and yet have enough health to be happy and sane. But the soundness of the teeth has a real and important bearing to the soundness of the rest of the body. Therefore, it behooves every one to look well to the care of his teeth.

It is never too soon to begin to care for a child's teeth. Although the latest theory is that boraic acid is perhaps not the best mouth wash for very small bables—because they swallow a little—still the baby's mouth should be put in good condition to receive its teeth even before these make an appearance. It should be kept clean, if not with anything else, at least with water.

The first teeth should be carefully watched, for if they are allowed to decay they often affect the teeth coming in about them and sometimes in jure the gum. So watch for any signs of decay and have them attended to immediately.

WAGES OF MEN INCREASE FROM 62 TO 110 PER CENT

National Industrial Conference Board Issues Statement Showing Changes in Pay.

MORE THAN LIVING COST RISE

Workers Generally Receive More Than Sufficient Added Compensation to Meet Higher Range of Prices of Necessaries of Life.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 .- Average wages of men in eight leading indusmeasured by average hourly increased all the way from 74 per cent to 112 per cent duri period from September, 1914, to 1919, according to a report on time Changes in Wages" issued by the national industrial conf board. Increases in weekly ca board. Increases in weekly earnings of men ranged from 62 per cent to 110

Percentage increases in earnings of female workers were broadly similar in the respective industries, with, however, a somewhat wider range.

The eight industries included were metal, cotton, wool, silk, boot and shoe, paper, rubber and chemical manufacturing. The average results are based on payroil data for one week, usually the third week of September, for the years 1914 to 1918, and for the first week of March, 1919.

Wages Increase 100 Per Cent. A noteworthy feature of the results is that the highest percentage increases in earnings often were recorded in cases where the absolute earnings were in earnings often were recorded in cases where the absolute earnings were relatively low, or vice versa. Thus hourly earnings of male workers in cotton manufacturing increased over 100 per cent, as against an increase of about 70 per cent for male workers in the metal manufacturing industries. Actual hourly earnings of the latter, however, were 50.2 cents in March. 1919, as compared with 38.9 cents for male cotton operatives. In the case of male workers in the rubber manufacturing industry, a high actual hourly average was accompanied by a high percentage rate of increase. The increases shown were, in most cases, greater than the corresponding percentage increase in cost of living, which was placed by a previous report of the board at 61.3 per cent for the period from July, 1914, to March, 1919. "This fact indicates." says the report that these workers were in general able to maintain and even to improve

Make More Than Women.

Actual earnings of men were consistently greater than those of women. The report points out, however, that this fact does not afford conclusive evidence as to how far the principle of "equal pay for equal work" was applied, since the tasks at which men and women were engaged in any given industry, while often broadly similar, were not necessarily identical.

In the main, the percentage increases in earnings of piece workers were greater than in those of time workers. Actual earnings of piece workers were, in a majority of cases, likewise greater than those of time workers in the same occupational group, but the exceptions to this rule were rather numerous.

The report emphasizes, however, that "comparisons of relative values afford no means whereby the adequacy of wages or living standards prevailing in either period can be determined. The comparisons simply afford an approximate idea of the extent to which the relationship between wages and living costs existing at the opening of the war was maintained or changed during the succeeding four and a half years." The report does not purport to discuss the question whether or to what extent wages should vary with changes in the cost of living.

Unless speedy action is taken by Congress, the committee was told that no other report would be issued this year, for Secretary Houston was said to hold the last report was as accurate as the department could make it, and that another report would be of no useful purpose. Final action by the committee was postponed awaiting inquiry of the department as to whether the new report could be issued without embarrassing the department's routine of work.
